REMARKS.

WE wish to draw the attention of our patrons to this sale, and we wish it to be understood that it is not a dealers stock, as every item in the sale is from private collections, the major portion belonging to a well known Philadelphian, now deceased.

The historical China consisting mostly of Plates and Platters, with Views in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Washington, Baltimore and elsewhere, should command the special attention of all collectors, and likewise the Old Pewters and Glass and China Cup-plates.

Among the Chinese and Japanese porcelains and bronzes are quite a number of fine cabinet specimens of unusual interest.

The Relics consist of an engraved glass tumbler, one of a set presented to Genl. Washington by Genl. Lafayette, Nelly Custis's ivory thimble, William Penn's Silver Bull's-eye watch, a pair of gold cuff buttons, made from buttons worn by Genl. Washington; several fine antique gold watches, antique cameos, enamels, &c.

The Paintings include a replica of Gilbert Stuart's Lansdowne's portrait of Washington, the noted Ivory Miniature, painted from life by Dodge, of Andrew Jackson, and considered to be the best portrait extant; a painting by Rubens, said to be the lost head of St. Peter; paintings by Angelica Kauffman, Wowermans, Thos. Sully and others.

Among the Engravings will be found many colored Sporting Prints, Naval Battles, American Views, Portraits, &c.; in fact the collection is so varied that it is really worthy the attention of all Collectors.

WILLIAM PENN'S WATCH.

- 300 OPEN FACE BULL'S-EYE SILVER WATCH. Made by Abraham Oostersvyk, Middleburgh. Tells day of month, with curiously engraved silver dial.
This watch belonged to William Penn, and was handed down through the Patton and Hale families to the mother of the present owner, from whom it was inherited. The tradition is that it was taken in trade from the Indians by William Penn, and formerly belonged to the great-grandmother of the present owner, Wealthy Hale. Accompanied with sworn statement.

DODGE'S MINIATURE OF ANDREW JACKSON.

- 301 IVORY MINIATURE OF ANDREW JACKSON. Half length seated. Painted by J. W. Dodge, 1842.
This is what is called the lost portrait of Andrew Jackson. It was painted at the "Hermitage," the home of Andrew Jackson, by J. W. Dodge in 1842. Mr. James Robb, banker of New Orleans, who was engaged in several business transactions with Queen Christina of Spain, requested the privilege of having a portrait painted of Henry Clay, then leader of the Whigs, and of Andrew Jackson, leader of the Democrats. He engaged the artist J. W. Dodge, in 1842, to go to Ashland, Kentucky, to paint Clay's portrait, and to the "Hermitage," at Nashville, Tenn., to paint that of Andrew Jackson. Mr. Hallett, banker of Alabama, who was a friend of Mr. Robb, was presented by the latter with the portrait of Andrew Jackson, for some special favor bestowed upon the donor by the recipient. Senator J. Hampton Robb, son of James Robb, still retains in his possession the miniature of Henry Clay. The Portrait of Jackson came into the possession of J. S. Dingwall through a regular business transaction with the Hallett family. It is considered by connoisseurs to be the finest portrait of Jackson extant. SEE FULL-SIZE FACSIMILE.

- 302 JACKSON, GENL. ANDREW. President of the United States. Autograph Letter Signed, 4to. Washington, May 22, 1835. To Edward Livingston, Minister of Paris, with address.
Introducing Col. W. R. Hallet. This letter will show the intimacy of the Hallet family with Andrew Jackson.

LANSDOWNE PORTRAIT OF WASHINGTON BY GILBERT STUART.

- 303 OIL PORTRAIT OF GENERAL WASHINGTON, full length, painted by Gilbert Stuart. With massive mahogany antique frame.

This is a replica of what is known as the Lansdowne Portrait which was painted from life by Gilbert Stuart under order of the Marquis of Lansdowne. Stuart made several copies, of which we believe this is one, and another is in the possession of the Academy of Fine Arts. While this painting has been in the possession of the present owner for fully a half century it was in the possession of the family for over seventy years, and came to them as a gift from a very prominent New York collector who believed it be a genuine Gilbert Stuart, which belief has always been entertained by those who subsequently owned it, and we share in this belief.
